CCPN: On the Road

From Allen Dobson, MD, Chairman

The pictures tell the story.

CCPN traveled to Winston-Salem in mid-September for a session that featured presentations by Dr. Stephen Hsieh, (left) current regional CCPN Board of Managers representative; Dr. Art Kelley, Medical Director for Northwest Community Care and Partnership for Community Care; and from me.

Just as important as what the CCPN leaders had to say, the meet-and-greet session gave the CCPN team a chance to hear from you about your questions and your priorities for our organization.

The meeting was a great success. We look forward to local face-to-face meetings, and I'm pleased to tell you the CCWJC session is coming up in November. (details at left). In the meantime, if you have questions, or thoughts about our focus do not hesitate to contact me or any of the CCPN team.

Learning Module 1:

Understanding and Maximizing the Value of QRUR (Quality and Resource Use Reports):

Thursday,
October 20, 2016
2 pm (1 hr)

This module is intended for PTN practice advisors and other staff, as well as clinics participating in a PTN; specifically, those interested in working with practices to use their QRUR to drive quality improvement.

Meet Ted Nifong, MD, CCPN Board of Managers

I don't have anything against the big guys, but people who are in independent practices are in them for a reason.

Solo and small group practitioners have accomplished something with their businesses they are rightfully proud of.

It's satisfying to operate a medical practice, but it is not easy. In small practices there's no one to delegate to. Technology is increasingly complicated and reimbursement is challenging. We know it is going to get tougher, but we don't know right now exactly how we are going to be judged and paid under reformed reimbursement models.

Small practices are looking at a third of their payer source changing drastically. A good number of the practices in this organization also have physicians in the latter third of their careers. In ten years down the road if these practices have not grown, they will fade away.

Ted Nifong, MD

I see CCPN as a solution to many of these issues. CCPN pools our resources and brings key expertise to practices at low cost or no cost.

Take reimbursement: if you took a poll of doctors two years ago they would probably have said figuring out reimbursement is the biggest challenge we are facing.

We need to enlighten the payers that it is in their interests as well as ours for them to invest in our practices so that we can remain viable. The standards of quality that CCPN will help us establish are better for patients, payers and for the practices.

With CCPN you are part of a team that is working to address a lot of the things holding us back. Through the efforts of this organization we can support each other. It's important for small practices to think about what it will take for the long haul. What will it take to succeed in five years, in 10 years -- what it will take to put you in a position to leave a legacy? These are questions that we can ask ourselves. And as a part of this larger CCPN group, we can find some answers that will likely help all of us.

Quality Assurance and Improvement Committee At-a-Glance

The Quality Assurance and Improvement Committee provides processes to promote evidence-based medicine, coordination of care and internal reporting on cost and quality to include remedial processes on quality improvement that would apply for member non-compliance. Dr. Steven Wegner is chair of the committee with Taylor Zublena as the staff lead. To learn how you can get involved, contact Taylor at tzublena@n3cn.org. Meanwhile, here is an overview of what the committee does:

- ◆ Select, design, and propose evidence-based quality measurements to and demonstrate quality improvement and improved health outcomes based on:
  - ◇ clinical importance (based on disease prevalence and impact, and potential for improvement)
  - ◇ scientific soundness (strength of evidence underlying the clinical practice recommendation, evidence that the measure itself improves care, and the reliability, validity, and comprehensibility of the measure)
  - ◇ implementation feasibility
  - ◇ and synergy with other state and national quality measures.
- ◆ Recommend policies and processes designed to provide effective and efficient clinical decision-making with sound clinical guidance and expectations to achieve optimal health outcomes, including but not limited to :
  - ◇ metrics measurement/deliverables, quality improvement, and utilization management.
  - ◇ practice/provider noncompliance with the expectations for quality improvement and utilization management, Performance Improvement plans, and further disciplinary action and/or termination as set forth in the Participation Agreement.
  - ◇ reviewing approved policies and procedures annually and recommending changes to the Board of Managers.

A total of 1,141 clinicians in 332 practices are a part of the Community Care Physician Network as of 9/30/2016. For a list of practices see below and on the following pages. Note, practices with multiple office locations are listed just once.
